

No damning terrors can transgression utter ;

For “ sin ” through Jesus has quite cancell’d been,
How can hell’s flame destroy the spirit’s longings,

If Jesu’s blood doth through its channels stream ?

“ Immanuel ” can govern hell ;

He will not leave my soul ! He loves it far too well !

Up, up, my soul, forget each wail of sorrow,

Rejoice thou in that might with love so fraught ;
There’s heavenly strength and glory beaming brightly,

To thee pure happiness once more is brought,

Oh ! ever, ever-lasting bliss,

That in the Well-Belov’d I’ve found a peace like this.

XXI.

“ THE DELIVERER.”

TO thee, Immanuel, we sing
The Prince of Life, of grace the spring,
Bright morning star, chaste heavenly flower,
Thou virgin’s son, yet God of power.

Hallelujah !

We join with all redemption’s throngs,
With strength, with praise, we sing our songs
That thou, our heavenly longed-for rest,
Again art as our earthly guest.

Hallelujah !

Since this great world by God was made,
How many hearts for thee have prayed !
The "Father's" hope for many a year,
Thy birth did priest and prophet cheer.

Hallelujah !

And others, too, thy reign did sing,
The "shepherd lad," of Israel king,
"Man of thy heart" who heavenward ran,
Upon the harp this song he sang.

Hallelujah !

"Oh, that the Lord from Zion came
To rend these bondage cords in twain ;
If this strong help he could but see,
Then Jacob well might happy be."

Hallelujah !

Now thou art here—there thou dost lie,
Asleep—in cradle-bed close by,
Thou'rt small, and yet mad'st all things great,
Art naked, yet didst all create.

Hallelujah !

Thou hast the sea in fetters bound,
Yet swaddling-clothes enwrap thee round,
Art God—yet in a manger cast,
Art Man—yet still the first and last.

Hallelujah !

Thou art the source of every joy,
Yet drinkest in grief's stern alloy ;
Dost to the heathen comfort speak,
Yet dost thyself for comfort seek.

Hallelujah !

Look on thy servant poor indeed,
 I do not hide from thee my need ;
 The love is great I bear to thee,
 But not what I would have it be.

Hallelujah !

The will is strong—the flesh is frail,
 Ah ! do not let my pleadings fail ;
 My poor sick heart, its every plea,
 I know thy grace will take from me.

Hallelujah !

Then “ Hallelujah,” o’er and o’er,
 Will I on earth sing more and more ;
 And then thy mansions shall resound,
 With songs that know no time or bound.

Hallelujah !

XXIII.

RIVERS OF WATERS.

I STAND beside thy manger-bed,
 O Jesus Christ, my “ Living !”
 I stand, I bring, I give to thee
 What thou to me wert giving.
 Receive ; it is my heart, my soul,
 Take thought and spirit in control,
 And let them be well-pleasing.
